

Landscapes

Find inspiration on ways you can use our funding to help look after the UK's beautiful landscapes.

What we expect from projects

We expect successful projects to show how they will address the key challenges faced by the UK's landscapes and nature.

Landscape projects must deliver one or more of the following requirements:

- conservation at a landscape scale
- increasing people's understanding of the cultural value of landscapes and seascapes
- bigger, better, well-connected and more resilient habitats for nature
- reconnecting people with nature

Key things to read

- our guidance on landscapes and nature projects
- Area-Based Schemes guidance

Expand All accordions

Landscape Partnerships, now and in the future

Between 2004 and 2017 we supported over 120 Landscape Partnerships.

Romney Marsh

These landscape-scale projects focused on the cultural and natural heritage of geographic areas generally between 20 and 200 square kilometres.

These included:

- the Belfast Hills Landscape Partnership
- Gwent Living Levels Partnership
- the Carbon Landscape in Manchester
- Inner Forth Landscape Partnership
- Fifth Continent Romney Marsh Landscape Partnership

Find out more about what we learned in our Landscape Partnerships evaluation.

You might also be interested in...

Environmental sustainability good practice guidance

Landscape Partnerships evaluation

Boardwalk at RSPB Loch Lomond

Working together to fund growth in investment in nature and communities